

Living Cooperatively

Dr James Arvanitakis
Centre for Cultural Research
University of Western Sydney
j.arvanitakis@uws.edu.au
0438-454-127

Three key questions...

- How does this affect my work?
- How can I work with the ideas that are being presented?
- What solutions do these ideas offer me for the work I do?

Roundtable discussion

- Each flows into the roundtable discussion tomorrow afternoon
- Roundtable aims to bring these together innovative ideas
- Start looking at what we can take away and where we go from here...

Key themes... where to from here?

(ie beyond beating on Sartor, Howard and the lawyers)

Key themes...

1. There is a need to find the right balance between competition and cooperation:
  - Gun-Britt, Jo Barraket,
2. There are places, projects and people that have confronted the issues discussed and identified innovative (sustainable) solutions
  - Andrew Jakubowicz, Col James, Louise Crabtree, Mark Snell, Adam Farrar, John Mant, Peter Webber
3. All levels of government - particularly local - can either help or hinder efforts
  - Paul Barber, Joseph Connellan, Steve Bevington, Bill Randolph, John Mant, Warwick Gosling/Greg Boyce, Genia McCaffery

Cont...

4. We need to break down the silos of our work: we have much to learn from each other
  - Caroline Butler-Bowden, Peter Phibbs, John McInerney, John Mant
5. The many things that bind us - including 'social capital' - need to be recognised and promoted: not just what we see but the potential (not magic - something productive)
  - Jenny Onyx, Gun-Britt, Peter Phibbs, Peter Webber
6. Things can get worse - or will get worse - very quickly unless we do something about it now!
  - Julian Disney (and everyone)

So...

- Everyone second table turn around...
- A quick round of introductions and present three ideas about how we can move forward together (ie cooperatively)
- Your facilitator will then feedback to everyone - just some of the ideas presented (not a synthesis)
- Set the agenda for the organising committee - meeting this afternoon